The Grosse Pointe Historical Society

The Grosse Pointe Historical Society (GPHS) was founded in 1945 to preserve and promote the rich local heritage and share it with the community. The Society works to make the history of our exceptional community vital, relevant, and accessible. Through programs, facilities and events GPHS brings history to life and protect historic artifacts.

The Society operates in two facilities, the Alfred B. and Ruth S. Moran Resource Center, which houses the Archives, and the c.1823 Provencal-Weir House, which functions as a living history museum for programs and educational activities.

The Archives collections include maps, documents, bills, contracts, letters, books and catalogs, photographs, videos, prints, drawings, watercolors, scrapbooks, albums, real estate records and other ephemera relating to the history of Grosse Pointe, as well as Native American objects and clothing, tools, and household goods and furniture.
